MANAGE VIRTUAL TEAMS

TMI

Many organisations acknowledge that accommodating their people in offices located in central locations is no longer the only answer to a growing workforce.

Rather than increase the number of building they have on their assets register, companies are encouraging their people to work remotely. This isn't just because their roles require them to be mobile, but because its more cost efficient on people's energy, time and travel costs.
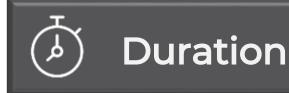

This move however, brings with it a challenge for managers who need to successfully communicate with, encourage and manage a team that is geographically dispersed and in the main only meets virtually – via VOIP, web casts or conference calls. This course shows how to build trust and team spirit when there are few face-to-face contacts.

How You Benefit

- By using a combination of communication channels and methods to support effective team working, considering cross-cultural differences
- Leveraging technology to overcome interaction challenges in remote teams
- Engaging all team members to maximise their contribution.
- By creating and maintaining motivation and team spirit within remote working environments

Who Should Attend

Managers whose team members are in different geographical locations

Duration

2 Days

Participant Materials

Pre-course work and reading and a 250 page A4 Participant Handbook which includes, exercises and assessments

Style

A facilitated programme with trainer led presentations group work, self-assessments, questionnaires, practical discussions using work based situations.

Our emphasis is on the LEARNING and the workplace application of skills by the LEARNER

Let's get started!

a GI GROUP brand